WHOLE RANGE INFORMATION MUST CHANGE

(By Associated Press.) BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 4.—An international clearing house on a large scale to render the whole range of human information increasingly accessible and useful is keenly needed, Charles L. Reese, an industrial chemist of Wilmington, Del., told the American chemical society here today at its spring meeting.

"The efficiency of our use of the products of human thought and its records is astonishingly low," he declared. "Why should we not handle the packing, storage, shipping and distribution of knowledge as efficiently as we manage commercial production?"

"It is greatly to be desired that ultimately an international service of this character be established with branches in most of the important countries, that a cataclysm such as has befallen Russia and might have befallen all Europe had the world war lasted much longer, may not result in the loss to the world of a large part of her wealth of information."

"The great war revealed to America some of the weaknesses of its position. What Germany had in 1914, because of her appreciation of systematized knowledge, we were compelled to create with feverish haste. "We need not flatter ourselves that America is exceptionally advanced in its consideration of information needs. The chances are that in Germany, Japan and probably other countries plans have already been formulated for the effective command of world informational resources in the interest of national development and prosperity."

"The time is believed ripe boldly to extend the plans of the research information service of the national research council. An organizing committee has agreed upon the following principles:

"The desirability of developing a general clearing house for scientific and technological information. The conduct of a free information service to promote research, useful applications of its results and the dissemination of knowledge necessary for human welfare and progress, with a charge for extra service. The encouragement of a miscellaneous request service, initially limited to scientific and technological knowledge. The development of a complete co-ordinated machinery for gathering, classifying, locating and disseminating information. Utilization by the service of correspondence, informational publications and publicity, to meet the needs of organizations and individuals and to educate the public to appreciate the value of an informational clearing house."

CANDELARIA IS READY TO STAGE REAL COMEBACK

company, and who was later in charge of the Dome mine at South Porcupine, still believes in Nevada as a mining center, and in 1919 proceeded with the sampling and development of the famous Northern Belle group of mines.

"Work on the construction of the 300-ton mill is progressing most satisfactorily," remarked Mr. Kaeding this morning, "and we expect to have the mill in operation in July. We are also constructing an account of Mineral county, 18 miles of power line, with an 80-horsepower substation at Candelaria, and as soon as the work has been completed and the installation of equipment made, we will purchase power from Mineral county. We are making extensive repairs to the 25-mile water pipe line which runs from Mount Montgomery, and are also extending the main line of the Southern Pacific which comes in from Filbert Junction, the terminus being at the big 300-ton mill. In addition, we have rehabilitated or constructed a number of houses for the accommodation of about 50 men, who are being and will be employed in and about the property, and within the next three months we expect to have Candelaria lighted until it resembles the great White Way of the metropolis of this country."

"It is estimated by engineers that there is available for treatment about 500,000 tons of ore at the Candelaria property, or a supply to keep the 300-ton mill in operation for a period of six years. Some of this ore will carry average values of 15 ounces silver a ton, while the numerous fills in the mine workings are expected to average 10 ounces silver a ton."

"The Candelaria Mines company, in addition to controlling the Northern Belle mines, has also taken over the Lucky Hill mine, which is practically a virgin property. The ore bodies that were cut off by the Northern Belle were found to be thrown by eruption to the southwest for 1800 feet or towards the footwall, and two separate veins of ore, each having a width of 20 feet and a length of 400 feet, so far as proven, are on the same dip and strike as the Main and Baldwin veins of the Northern Belle. On this property 6000 feet of development has been performed, while in the original Candelaria workings there are 15 miles of underground development. The value of the ore in the faces of the Lucky Hill workings averages from $35 to $40 a ton."

"In sampling the Candelaria mines 15,000 tests were made, and the examination was one of the most exhaustive and complete ever made upon a property in Nevada."

The flow sheet of the new milling plant as given out roughly this morning by Mr. Kaeding, follows: The coarse ore is put through the crusher and rolls to 30 mesh, and the sent to the main mill, using ball mills and ground in a cyanide solution. Everything that runs to 20 mesh is then sent to Dorr Bowl classifiers where the sand and slime separation takes place. This results in 33 per cent slimes and 66 per cent sand. The slimes are then sent to decantation and Oliver filters and the sand to the leaching tanks. The medium grade ore from the fills will be wasted at this point, and the high grade ore will receive further treatment. The tails from the leaching vat are then sent to the roasting plant where the silver is chloridized and recyanidized.

Mr. Kaeding, the president and general manager, and who also serves as consulting engineer for the Rochester Silver corporation and the Simon Silver-Lead Mining company, states that he has past records of bullion shipment available which show that during the last ten years of the operation of the Candelaria mines a production of $1,000,000 annually resulted. The mines were in operation for 28 years, but the previous 18 years' records are not available.

AMUSEMENTS

SEENA OWEN IN "BACK PAY" TODAY.

Beautiful Seena Owen, playing the leading role in "Back Pay," a Cosmopolitan production, and a message to the girlhood of the United States, coming to the Butler today, selected the magnificent gowns she wears in this picture with the aid of Mrs. Elizabeth Lonsberry, associate editor of "Harper's Bazaar." Together they toured Fifth Avenue in search of the proper gowns because Miss Owen in her role of Hester Bevis, portrays a wildly extravagant young woman who holds the purse strings of a millionaire's wealth. The gowns are worth a small fortune.

Hester Bevis is a country girl, who on going to New York falls in with a set of men and women who lead the gayest of lives. Wheeler, a Wall Street man, establishes Hester in a gorgeous apartment and surrounds her with every luxury. It tells the story of a country girl with a "crepe de chine" soul, who loses and finds herself in the big city. The picture has just closed a two weeks' engagement in a Market street theater, San Francisco.

Added to the program, the latest Pathé Review.

"Tomorrow, 'The Concert,' an all-star production, with comedy, humor, suspense, heart throbs—they're all in it; and a two-act Sunshine comedy, 'The Hook Agent,' added to the program for good measure.

POPULATION IN RUSS DISTRICT NOW STARVING

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, March 17.—(By Mail).—Fifty per cent of the famine stricken population in the district of Ufa (southeastern Russia), is doomed to die of hunger, and in the Bashkir republic (southern Ural region), 35 per cent will undergo a like fate, says a report to the American relief administration by F. H. Hofstra, of Grand Rapids, Mich., executive for the areas named.

According to Mr. Hofstra, this is a very conservative estimate, being based on figures obtained some time back. Brought up to date, the figures would probably be 25 per cent higher, "even allowing for the full American effort," he says.

Under the feeding program made possible by the American congressional appropriation, an adult receives one Russian funt, or roughly 14 ounces, of raw corn per day.

ODESSA PLACE FOR BARGAINS PRESENT TIME

(By Associated Press.)

ODESSA, March 8.—(By Mail).—This port is and will be for a few months the paradise of the bargain hunter. A leather valise sold in Paris or London for $50 may be had here for $6.

Persian rugs go begging at $15 to $20 that in Persia would sell for $50 while the seller swore to his father's memory that he was robbing his family of daily bread.

Paintings by good artists sell for $2 or $3 with a frame thrown in worth $10 or $20. Silver tableware sells for five to ten cents per ounce.

A foreigner settling here for business reasons may rent a house for $50 a year, and possibly buy an indefinite lease on it for $200. The furniture, excepting the table dishes, may be had for another $200; but if there are any repairs he must pay western European wages for labor.

The reasons for these low prices of articles are that many of them were stolen, that there isn't much trade and the original owners are selling off all their home treasures for food.

To keep alive a family of five it takes 1,000,000 rubles, or $2 a day, and the prices of food jump as the ruble drops in value.

Trade has not been so brisk here as in Moscow as there are fewer strangers to buy. Fewer Russians can get into the city because the trains run only a few times a month owing to lack of fuel. At that, shops are opening daily, as the new economic policy of the Moscow government is applied. Diamonds and objects of value are covertly shown to prospective customers in these shops, the dealers still being in fear of the old laws against speculation and free trade.

The city is full of thousands of young men and old who speak and write English, French and German, men who in the old days of commerce were employed about the port or with American and other foreign firms dealing with the interior. These men are glad to get work insuring them $20 worth of food a month.

WANTED—BIDS

for the following work: Setting poles on 2 1/2 miles of power line; furnishing wire, insulators, cross-arms and installing same; poles will be furnished on the ground; pole holes will be dug. For specifications write Arthur S. Putney, Manhattan, Nevada. A4-54.
